

Spring Chirp Bird List - 2023

So many possibilities! The list of birds shown here have all been entered in eBird (eBird.org) in the area covered by our field trips the last week of March and the first week of April. Local or regional specialties are underlined, more regular species are in bold, Texas Bird Records Committee rarities are indicated with , and introduced (non-native) species are indicated with an I. A few parrots that are not considered established under the ABA guidelines are listed with I-NE.
